STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS

SYNOPSIS OF THE STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS OF THE SEVERAL STATES AND TERRITORIES AS THEY APPLY TO STOCK CASUALTY, SURETY, FIDELITY AND MISCELLANEOUS INSURANCE COMPANIES OF OTHER STATES

In the following pages will be found concise statements of the statutory requirements for the admission of stock casualty, surety, fidelity, and miscellaneous insurance companies other than fire and life, to do business in the respective States. In this brief form, the synopses are intended more as a hint than an actual guide, for it is not anticipated that any company on entering a State would be satisfied with anything less than the statutes themselves as their reliance as to conditions. Our summary, however, may be accepted as correct as far as it goes.

It has been our aim in preparing these synopses of the statutes to secure uniformity for all the States and to give the essential requirements in as brief a space as possible consistent with the statement of the facts. The synopsis for each State was sent to the supervising officer of such State and returned to us with his approval to date, or with such corrections as he deemed essential. We believe that the information given in this condensed form is as correct as it is possible to make it, and will be sufficient to indicate to all interested the statutory requirements of the several States and Territories.

ALABAMA.

SUPERVISING OFFICER, JOHN SURIFOY, INSURANCE COMMISSIONER, MONTGOMERY.

ADVERTISEMENTS, REGULATIONS GOVERNING.—Abstract of statement for publication in newspaper of general circulation. A uniform charge of $10 is made for publishing statement. AGENT DEFINED.—Any person who solicits insurance, or takes or transmits, other than for himself, any applications for insurance, or any policy of insurance, to the company, or in any way gives notice that he will receive or transmit the same, or receives or delivers a policy of insurance, or examines or inspects a risk, or receives, collects or transmits any premium, or does or performs any other act or thing in the making or consummating of any contract of insurance, other than for himself, or examines or adjusts, or aids in adjusting any loss, whether such acts shall be done at the request or instance or by the employment of such insurance company, or of or by any other person. Held to be agent of company and not the insured.

AGENT'S LICENSE.—Fee for local agent, $3.50; general or special agent, $3.50. Each member of firm or corporation to have individual certificate. Date of expiration December 31 and renewable not later than January 31. Please Read Carefully.

The uniform blank for the annual reports of miscellaneous stock insurance companies adopted by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, includes several mere bookkeeping items which do not properly enter into a cash statement. The items principally affected are Total Income and Total Expenditure, therefore the publishers have ignored certain items called for by the convention blank, so as to make an uniform showing for the ten years. The changes from the convention blank are explained below:

PREMIUM INCOME.—The blank since 1908 calls for premiums written during the year, instead of net cash premiums. In this publication only the cash premiums received during the respective years are given, thereby making the showing uniform for the ten years.

TOTAL INCOME.—This column does not include the item "Gross increase in book value of ledger assets," which is entirely eliminated from the income account. The profit on sales and any profit and loss account are given net, the items on the disbursement side being deducted, or vice versa. Policy fees are omitted.

TOTAL EXPENDITURES.—This column does not include the item "Gross decrease in book value of ledger assets"; which, like the corresponding item in total income, is entirely eliminated. Loss on sales and profit and loss account (if any) are given net. Policy fees retained by agents are omitted.

LOSSES PAID.—Commencing with the business of 1907 the expenses of investigation and adjustment of claims were called for separately. As it had been the custom of the companies to include these expenses under losses, they have been so included in this publication.

CASUALTY, SURETY AND MISCELLANEOUS INSURANCE IN THE UNITED STATES

DEVELOPMENT AND STATISTICS OF THE BUSINESS—LAWS RELATING TO THE SAME—DESCRIPTION OF FORMS OF POLICIES—LAWFUL RESERVES REQUIRED—SUMMARY OF CHILD LABOR LAWS, ETC.

By EDWIN W. DELEON, President, Casualty Company of America.

The legislation during 1914, affecting casualty and miscellaneous insurance, was limited to the action taken by fourteen Legislatures and the United States Congress.

The New York Legislature continued the existing commission appointed to investigate conditions in factories and to report in February, 1915.

The Massachusetts Legislature provided for a commission of three to inquire into the rates for Workmen's Compensation and other classes of insurance, and to report to what extent governmental regulation is advisable. Another law of that State (Ch. 791) requires that operatives of moving picture machines shall be twenty-one years of age and thoroughly skilled, and providing for an examination fee of three dollars and an annual renewal license fee of one dollar.

A New Jersey law (Ch. 112) exempts from the operation of any municipal ordinance operators of machines using non-explosive films not over 100 feet long and one inch wide, operated with an electric current of not over 550 watts.

Kentucky enacted a timely law (Ch. 69), providing for a State board of examiners for chauffeurs, who shall require that applicants for licenses shall be at least eighteen years of age, and must furnish references as to honesty and sobriety and pass an examination to prove their fitness for the work.

FACTORY INSPECTION AND REGULATION.

Maryland provided for additional factory inspection (Ch. 675) and for the better enforcement of child labor laws (Ch. 840).

In Massachusetts a special inspector was provided for to enforce the laws regarding the manufacture or use of explosives and inflammable compounds (Ch. 421).

The Mississippi Legislature created a State factory inspector, who shall inspect three times a year all factories and canneries where women and children are employed. Every factory employing five or more persons must be registered and a license fee paid. Annual reports are required from such employers, giving the number of work people, the sanitary conditions and other like information (Ch. 163).

In Virginia a law was passed requiring stairways to have handrails, and where females are employed to be screened at sides and bottom; dangerous machinery is to be guarded; belt shifters provided and workrooms adequately lighted. If more than twenty-five employees are in service, doors must open outward and not be fastened during working hours (Ch. 16). Another law provides for the proper ventilation of foundries (Ch. 333).

A new law in Kentucky regulates the employment of children and requires the guarding of dangerous machinery and the use of belt shifters in factories where persons under twenty-one years of age are employed (Ch. 72).

In Wisconsin the orders of the Industrial Commission relating to elevators were extensively changed and some additions were made (Nos. 400-454). Regulations affecting stationary boilers were also issued by the Commission (Nos. 4000-4273).

In New York the defining section of the labor law was amended by adding generating plants to the establishments included under the term "factory" (Ch. 512).

In Louisiana a law was enacted in regard to safety in case of fire by providing that if there are employees above the second story, one or more fire escapes on the outside of the building must be maintained, unless the State Commission of Labor deems it unnecessary, or the erection of an outside fire escape is impracticable, in which case adequate internal means of escape must be provided (No. 171).

A Massachusetts law regulates the storage of inflammable articles, and authorizes the fire prevention commissioner to make rules as to fire extinguishers, smoking in factories, cleaning of chimneys, etc. (Ch. 795). Another law makes obligatory the statute forbidding the locking of doors during work hours and provides penalties for violation (Ch. 566).

New York made some changes in the law as to fire escapes on factories, with a view to its greater effectiveness (Ch. 182). A law relating to the city of New York alone authorizes the Fire Commissioner to require fire drills in places "where numbers work" (Ch. 459). Another law, amending the statute relating to the inspection of mercantile establishments, added provisions as to ventilation, cleanliness, disposal of rubbish, supply of drinking water, etc. (Ch. 183).

In New Jersey a law was enacted relating to work under compressed air, requiring inspection of machinery, medical examination of workmen, the regular employment of a physician, and also of a nurse, if the pressure exceed seventeen pounds to the square inch. Exit from decompression locks must also be provided for (Ch. 121).

The Wisconsin Industrial Commission issued a series of orders during the year regarding the construction and protection of scaffolds, the installation of counter-floors, the inclosing of floor openings and other details for the protection of workmen employed in construction work (Nos. 3500-3519).

MINING LAWS.

The Kentucky Legislature repealed the existing mine regulations and established a department of mines with a chief inspector and assistants. The duties of superintendents, foremen, fire bosses and shot firers, employed in gaseous or dusty mines where ten or more are employed, are regulated. Stretchers and first-aid provisions are prescribed, electric installations regulated, and safety equipment, ventilation, drainage provided for (Ch. 79). A new law in Ohio requires a stretcher and pair of blankets to be kept at mines for each thirty-five persons employed. Other first-aid requisites are provided for, as required by the Industrial Commission (p. 164).

EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN

In Georgia the minimum age for employment of children was fixed at fourteen, instead of twelve, except as to dependents and widows' children; that remains at twelve years. A special certificate renewable every six months is required for the employment of every child under fourteen; also a schooling certificate showing school attendance of at least twelve weeks in the preceding year. Children under fourteen years may not be employed between the hours of 7 P. M. and 6 A. M. (p. 88).

Kentucky child labor laws were repealed, and a new law enacted fixing the minimum age of employment at fourteen in designated employments and forbidding all employment under that age during school term. Hours of labor of children under sixteen years are restricted to eight per day and forty-eight per week, and no work to be done between 6 P. M. and 7 A. M. A standard list of prohibited occupations for children under sixteen is provided (Ch. 72).

In Louisiana the Act of 1908 applicable to establishments where five or more persons are employed was abolished, and the law was made of general application, and includes hotels and restaurants, and "any other occupation whatsoever" (No. 133).

Mississippi enacted a special law regulating employment of children in cotton and knitting mills. The age limit remains as before, twelve years for males and fourteen years for females. The age below which hours of labor are regulated is fourteen years for males and sixteen for females (Ch. 164).

New Jersey amended the law by adding newspaper plants, printing plants and commercial laundries to the places coming under the law as to the age limit of employment (Ch. 60). Mines and quarries were also brought under the Act and an additional inspector provided for (Ch. 236). Another law makes special provision for the issue of certificates generally and for special certificates for children between ages ten and sixteen desiring to work for their own support or that of the family (Ch. 223). A standard list of dangerous employments for children under sixteen years is given and hours of their employment are limited to eight hours daily, in place of ten hours, as heretofore, and to forty-eight hours per week, no work being permitted on Sundays or holidays. Night work is forbidden between 7 P. M. and 7 A. M., instead of between 6 P. M. and 6 A. M., as under the previous law (Ch. 252).

A new law, relating to employment of children in mercantile establishments, forbids such employment under fourteen years, fixes an eight-hour day and forty-eight-hour week; repeals the permit to work until 9 P. M. one day in each week, and until 10 P. M. from December 15 to 25th, and prohibits Sunday work, and forbids injurious, excessive or exposing employments (Ch. 253).

A New York law amends the law relating to employment of children in mercantile establishments by limiting work hours to eight per day and forty-eight per week, instead of nine per day and fifty-four per week, as formerly, and fixing the time for stopping work at 6 P. M., instead of 7 P. M. This law is extended to include offices, bowling alleys, shoe cleaning places and barber shops (Ch. 331).

Virginia amended its child labor laws by extending the list of employments in which children under fourteen years may not work and striking out the exemption of orphans from its scope. Children under sixteen years may not be employed between 9 P. M. and 7 A. M., and must have certificates with proof of age. The law does not apply to work in canneries between July 1 and November 1 (Ch. 339). Another law amends the law relating to the hours of work, adds laundries to the list of establishments to which the act applies; repeals the provision permitting longer hours on Saturday, and prohibits employment of minors and females in places where intoxicating liquors are sold, except in hotels and country stores (Ch. 158).

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY AND WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Massachusetts enacted a law that in actions against employers, due care on the part of the injured person shall be presumed and that contributory negligence shall be affirmatively proven (Ch. 553). Another law provides that the insurance company's liability shall be absolute in case of loss, and gives the judgment creditor a direct claim on the company for the amount due under the policy (Ch. 464).

A law in Mississippi provides that if an employer was negligent an injured employee shall not be deemed to have assumed the risk, except in the case of railroad conductors and engineers voluntarily operating dangerous cars or engines (Ch. 156).

The Constitution of Wyoming was amended so as to authorize a Workmen's Compensation Law.

Kentucky enacted a Workmen's Compensation Law (Ch. 73) providing for an elective system covering a large list of occupations and applicable where six or more are employed. Other employments may come under the law by agreement or be brought within its terms by the Compensation Board. Election is made by the employer by paying premiums into the State Insurance Fund, administered by the Compensation Board or by posting notices in his establishment. If the employer fails to come within the act, the three usual common law defenses are removed in any action brought against him for damages. Benefits are payable on the basis of fifty per cent of wages, maximum $12 per week, minimum $5, not to exceed $3750 total, or be continued for more than six years. No payments are made during the first week, except for medical or surgical aid, not to exceed $100 in any one case. The Court of Appeals declared this law unconstitutional on December 11, 1914, on the ground that the abrogation of the three common law defenses amounted to a compulsion and was contrary to the State Constitution.

Louisiana enacted an elective compensation law (No. 20), but compulsory as to the State and municipalities. The law includes a large number of hazardous employments, and provides that other occupations may be included either by agreement between employer and workman, or by a decision of court. Election is presumed in the absence of contrary notice, and if the law is rejected by the employer the three common law defenses are removed. Benefits are payable on a fifty per cent basis, after two weeks' waiting period, maximum $10, minimum $3, payable in case of death during the life or until remarriage of the widow; for disability not to exceed 400 weeks. Medical or surgical aid not exceeding $100 must be furnished by the employer during the first two weeks. Agreements as to awards must be approved by the court, which also decides as to claims where disagreement exists.

Maryland passed a compensation law (Ch. 800) compulsory in effect as to a list of employments called extra hazardous and elective as to others. Domestic and farm labor, rural mechanics and persons receiving more than $2,000 a year are excepted. Two weeks' waiting period is fixed unless the injury is permanent, when payment begins at end of the first week. Benefits are paid on a fifty per cent basis, extending over eight years for death, with a maximum of $4250 and a minimum of $1000. Medical and surgical aid not exceeding $150 must be furnished. A State Insurance Fund is provided for, but insurance in other companies is permitted, or the employer need not insure if he can give satisfactory proof of his financial ability to meet the obligations of the act. Disputes and the general administration of the law are in the hands of an industrial commission, with the right of appeal to the courts. Another Maryland law authorizes twenty or more employers, with not less than 2000 employees, to form mutual associations to secure the benefits provided by the Workmen's Compensation Law, or to provide old age, unemployment, or other benefits for their employees. Each member has one vote and one additional vote for each 500 employees or major fraction thereof. Employees are also entitled to vote if they contribute to the fund (Ch. 489).

The Massachusetts Workmen's Compensation Law was amended to increase the benefits to $66\frac{2}{3}$ per cent of the employee's wages, in place of fifty per cent, and extending the period of payments from 300 to 500 weeks, with the maximum sum fixed at \$4000. A conclusive presumption of dependence is created in favor of a wife who has been deserted by her husband or who is living apart from him for justifiable causes. Provision is also made for the children of a deceased workman by a former marriage. Another change authorizes compensation payments to minors to be made partly or wholly in lump sums; arbitration is provided for in case of disagreement as to physicians' or attorneys' fees; interest is allowed from the original date of award in cases where appeals are confirmed by the courts; insurance companies and associations are required to furnish statistical information to the Industrial Accident Board, and the Board is authorized to establish four branch offices in selected cities (Ch. 708). Another law authorizes municipalities to vote on the acceptance of the Workmen's Compensation Law at the election in 1915, if they failed to do so at the first annual meeting after the act was passed (Ch. 618).

An amendment to the New Jersey act provides for the payment of expenses of the last sickness and burial in all fatal cases, instead of only those where there are no dependents (Ch. 244).

The New York law was amended by bringing within the scope of the act all employees of the State and its municipalities; allowing deductions to be made from the compensation of all gratuitous payments made under any other plans or schemes; increasing a child's share of compensation payable on account of the father's death, in case of the mother's death before the child reaches age eighteen (Ch. 316). Another law requires insurance companies transacting workmen's compensation in the State to file with the Superintendent of Insurance a manual of basis rates showing classifications and premiums and all changes therein, no classification or rate to take effect until approved by him (Ch. 16).

The compensation law of Ohio was amended, growing out of a court decision, so as to define the meaning of the term "willful act," for which an employer may be sued, in case the employee does not wish to accept the compensation provided for the injury. This was defined as an act that was done knowingly and purposely with the direct object of injuring another (p. 193).

The President of the United States, by executive order dated March 20, 1914, approved a compensation plan for Federal employees in the Canal Zone, superseding an earlier order. Compensation is paid on the basis of seventy-five per cent of the wages for three months, and fifty per cent thereafter, for not more than eight years. This order became effective on April 1, 1914.

OCCUPATIONAL DISEASES.

New Jersey enacted a detailed law in regard to prevention of occupational diseases, including regulations for cleaning floors, adequate ventilation and sanitation, furnishing suitable clothing and respirators to employees, and requiring medical examination at least monthly of employees engaged in dangerous occupations. Dangerous processes are declared to be all work connected with the manufacture of lead and with the manufacture of pottery, tiles or porcelain enameled ware. Medical examinations shall be made by a licensed physician, employed and paid by the employer, and shall be made during working hours, a time allowance, at the employer's expense, being given to each employee so examined. A report of each examination shall be sent within forty-eight hours after made to the Department of Labor and to the State Board of Health, also to the employer, who shall not, after five days from date of report, continue the employee in any work "where he will be exposed to lead dusts, lead fumes or lead solutions, nor return the said employee to such work or process without a written permit from a licensed physician." This law became effective October 1, 1914, except as to certain provisions that are to be effective October 1, 1915, and October 1, 1916, respectively (Ch. 162).

SUITS FOR FATAL INJURIES.

The only legislation on this subject was an act in Mississippi amending the law so as to authorize suits, in cases where an injury resulted in death, to be brought in the name of the personal representatives for the benefit of all claimants. An action may still be brought by individuals in their own right, but only one suit may be brought in any case where a decision is rendered on the merits of the case (Ch. 214).

The underwriting and investment profits and losses of seventy-one casualty and miscellaneous insurance companies for the year 1914 disclosed that a larger underwriting loss was sustained by the principal companies than in any previous year in the history of the business. The total underwriting income earned was $131,341,944, and the losses and underwriting expenses incurred were $134,196,504, showing a net underwriting loss of $2,854,560, or 2.1 per cent of the total underwriting income. Forty of the seventy-one companies show an underwriting loss varying from .9 per cent, in the case of the lowest, to 84.3 per cent for the highest. Investment income and accretion amounted to $7,037,056, and thereby enabled the companies to show an earned surplus of $4,182,496 and to pay dividends to stockholders amounting to $3,134,921. The sum of $3,013,545 was added to reserves and contingent funds, which resulted in a decrease in net surplus of $1,965,970. The ratio of net losses incurred to underwriting income earned was 49.5 per cent, and the ratio of expenses incurred to underwriting income earned was 52.6 per cent, or a total of 102.1 per cent.

The conclusions reached from a study of these figures indicate that the casualty companies conducted their vast operations at a heavy loss. Since 1911 this loss has steadily increased from $406,510 in that year to $2,854,560 in 1914, and it is evident that if these companies are to continue in business some way must be found to improve general conditions and to bring about needed reforms within the companies. Had not the investment earnings in 1914 exceeded those of 1913 by $4,696,881, the net surplus for the past year would have decreased over $6,500,000 and the underwriting loss would have exceeded 8 per cent. The figures for ten years ending December 31, 1914, are scarcely more comforting, for the underwriting income earned by seventy-one principal companies was $782,042,827, and the losses and expenses incurred were $774,225,190, leaving a net underwriting profit on this vast volume of business of only one per cent. During these ten years more than one-half of the companies sustained underwriting losses, ranging from .7 per cent to 13.3 per cent. Forty-eight companies transacting general casualty business showed an earned underwriting income of $597,391,009 and an underwriting profit of only two-tenths of one per cent. Of these companies twenty-eight sustained an actual loss on their underwriting, amounting in the case of one company with three years' experience to a loss of 60.1 per cent.

A summary of the aggregate results for this ten-year period is as follows:

Underwriting premiums earned.....	$782,042,827
Investment income and accretion.....	34,739,205
Total income	$816,782,032
Losses and underwriting expenses incurred.....	$774,225,190
Dividends and foreign companies' remittances.....	26,437,578
Increase in contingent funds.....	5,491,207
Increase in net surplus.....	10,628,057
	$816,782,032

Various changes of importance took place during 1914 among casualty companies. The Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company increased its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, adding $250 to surplus. The New Amsterdam Casualty Company increased its capital stock from $400,000 to $500,000. The American Fidelity Company reduced its capital stock from $382,750 to $305,500, and the stockholders of the company contributed $150,000 to the surplus. The Illinois Surety Company reduced its capital stock from $500,000 to $250,000. Fifteen mutual companies were organized to transact insurance in New York State under the law effective July 1, 1914, permitting the formation of a mutual company when applications have been received from at least forty employers, employing not less than twenty-five hundred workpeople. The list of these mutual companies is as follows: (p. 19) American Mutual Compensation Insurance Company, Baker's Mutual Indemnity Company of New York, etc.

On or about July 15, 1914, the Compensation Inspection Rating Board was organized in New York to assist in underwriting workmen's compensation insurance in this State upon scientific and uniform lines. Forty companies, comprising twenty-five stock companies, fourteen mutual companies and the State Insurance Fund, immediately became members of this board, the objects of which are stated in its constitution to be "(1) to make premium rates equitably adjusted to the hazard of the individual risk by means of a system of schedule rating, the debits and credits therein to be based upon inspections by the board and upon such experience compiled by the board as may demonstrate the existence of a human hazard not revealed by inspection; (2) to reduce the number and severity of accidents through encouragement given employers to improve conditions by the offer of reduced rates therefor." A governing committee, consisting of two representatives of stock companies, two representatives of mutual companies and one representative of the State Fund, managed the affairs of the Bureau, assisted by a manager, a secretary and a chief inspector. Two sub-committees carry out the plan of the Bureau as outlined in the constitution, the committee on classifications and rates and the committee on schedule rating. The duties of the committee on classifications and rates are to assign risks to particular manual classifications, to make amendments to the basis manual, to settle disputes and controversies concerning manual rates and classifications and questions of payroll division, and to afford hearings to employers with reference to any of these questions. This committee is taken from members of the underwriting staff of the members, with the Bureau manager as chairman, who has the deciding vote in case of a tie. The committee on schedule rating consists of representatives from the inspection departments of the members employing them, with the chief inspector of the board as chairman. The duties of this committee are to supervise the application of the schedule rating system adopted by the board, to make or change rules regarding the operation of this system, as may be necessary, and to decide disputes arising as to the application of the schedule in particular cases. Stock companies, mutual companies and the State Insurance Fund are represented on all committees and the Insurance Department is a member, ex-officio, of the two sub-committees.

The work of the rating board is under the supervision of the Insurance Department. All changes in manual rates under the schedule rating system must be approved before promulgated. Any policyholder, dissatisfied with a decision of the board, may appeal to the Department. Departures from manual rates are based partly upon physical conditions disclosed by inspection, and partly upon experience of the employer for not less than two years preceding date when rate is applied for. The term "physical conditions" includes construction and condition of buildings, machinery, power and transmission plant and elevators. The schedule provides a flat charge or credit for the catastrophe hazard expressed in points to the manual rate on the principle that this hazard affects the entire payroll. A percentage charge, applied to the manual rate, is made for hazards incidental to or inherent in the industry and affecting all employees therein; for hazards to which only a part of the employees are exposed at one time, a method is provided of adjusting credits and charges on the payroll basis of the risk. Credits are given for safety and welfare work among the employees, as well as for general order, light and sanitation. Experience rating on manufacturing risks is based upon the moral conditions in the factory and is expressed in so-called discretionary credits. Schedule rating based on physical conditions being possible only on manufacturing risks at the present time, departures from manual rates on all other classifications are made on experience data furnished to the board. This experience is valued upon a fixed schedule of estimated costs under workmen's compensation, and the loss ratio derived thereby is measured against the manual rate or rates for the risk. If the result is favorable to the employer, a reduction is allowed not exceeding in any event 30 per cent from the basis rate; if unfavorable, a charge is made increasing the basis rate.

The New York workmen's compensation law requires various provisions to be incorporated in any insurance policy assuming the obligations of the employer under the law, and provides that a copy of the policy must be filed with the Workmens Compensation Commission. The Insurance Department having assumed supervision over rates as to adequacy, and as regards discrimination, deemed it advisable to recommend the adoption of a standard form of policy and a draft was prepared by the Department, which, after receiving careful consideration and free criticism, was adopted by all companies transacting workmen's compensation insurance in this State, and was accepted as evidence of insurance by the State Commission. The adoption of a standard policy was considered a radical departure, but a progressive step, by giving to employers of this State a clear and concise contract, free from ambiguities and definite in its terms as to coverage and the obligations assumed.

The need for definite concerted action among companies on workmen's compensation insurance in America is forcibly and timely illustrated by the experience of the companies in Great Britain since the passage of the British Compensation Act of 1907. The Policyholder of Manchester, England, recently printed the following extracts from an article written by William T. Wells, an English underwriter, who is regarded as an authority.

The tables referred to will be found among the statistical tables at the end of this chapter.

"Returns furnished to the home office (British Government) clearly indicate that since the introduction of the Workmen's Compensation Act in 1907 there has, year by year, been a steady advance in the "accident frequency" in the seven leading industries, in respect of which statistics are furnished; and there appears little justification for assuming that this factor has yet reached a maximum. Further, while no statistics bearing upon the point are to be obtained, it will readily be accepted that the ever-extending knowledge of workpeople of their rights under the statutes, and the fact that it is to the interest of their societies operating under the National Health Insurance Act, 1911, to see that the members' legitimate claims are prosecuted, will result in an increase in the percentage of accidents in respect of which compensation for injuries sustained will require to be paid. Had the "accident frequency" and the percentage of claims to accidents remained stationary during the years 1909 to 1913, the figures given in the table subjoined, showing a reduction from 74.91 in 1909 to 58.66 in 1913, in the number of claims per £1000 premium income, would indicate that the rates during these years had been increased by an average of a little under 28 per cent. This is, however, undoubtedly less than the actual increase in the rates during these years, and it is therefore clear that the experience of the offices gives confirmation to the above statements that there has been an advance in the "accident frequency" and, or, in the percentage of claims to accidents:

YEAR.	Number of Claims Reported to 28 Tariff Offices.	Total Earned Premium Income of the Said Offices.	Number of Claims per £1000 Prem. Income.
1909.....	145,111	£1,937,111	74.91
1910.....	150,459	1,962,755	76.66
1911.....	158,205	2,149,436	73.60
1912.....	152,528	2,401,152	63.52
1913.....	154,839	2,639,474	58.66

While there would not appear to have been any perceptible increase in the average cost of settlement of all claims reported during the years 1908 to 1911, this may to a certain extent be due partly to a probably increased percentage of claims made in respect of accidents involving but minor injuries, and partly to the fact that greater experience, and improved facilities for the prompt handling of claims, have enabled the offices to steadily reduce the average cost of claims where the injuries involved are of a temporary nature, as it cannot be doubted that the average cost of settlement of claims, where the injuries involved are of a serious and more or less permanent nature, has already shown and will during the next few years continue to show a decided tendency to increase, such claims being now in many cases under the control of the injured employees' National Health Society, to whose interest it is rather to have the member an annuitant upon the employers' liability office than allow him to accept a lump sum settlement at less than the annuity basis.

Further, even assuming that no fresh legislation will be introduced in the near future extending the scope of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, it is to be remembered that the tendency of successive legal decisions has been to a wider interpretation of the existing provisions of the Act. An excellent illustration of this was recently furnished in the Second Division of the Court of Session, Scotland, where the court upheld the award of a Sheriff-Substitute, and the Lord Justice-Clerk, in concurring in the leading opinion stated by Lord Guthrie, said: "he agreed that this was a narrow and difficult case. To his mind the difficulty was only created by the decisions which had been given in the past upon the act. Had this case been brought immediately after the act was passed, he would have had no hesitation whatever in holding that the respondent had not a right to obtain compensation from his employers in the present circumstances. But the matter had been so extraordinarily extended by decisions that had been pronounced, decisions which he felt bound to submit to, that he could not see sufficient grounds for differing from the judgment proposed."

Bearing in mind the various points before mentioned—(a) the steady increase in the "accident frequency," (b) the rising percentage of claims to accidents, (c) the probably serious increase within the next few years in the average cost of settlement of claims where the injuries involved are of a serious and more or less permanent nature, (d) the continued wider interpretation of the provisions of the act, and, in addition, (e) the increasing strain upon the human element through the extension of machinery and the general speeding up in commercial works, (f) the probably increased percentage of under-average lives and less skilled workers now employed consequent upon the upheaval in the industrial organization through the war, and (g) the required premium reserve for the "catastrophe hazard," which is not to be minimized—it is instructive to observe from the annexed table that of the premiums underwritten by the tariff offices during the year 1913, practically fifty per cent will be required to dispose of all claims reported in that year, and this upon the assumption that the average cost of settlement will not exceed the ascertained average for previous years. It is clear, therefore, that the rates presently charged by the tariff offices do not, as a whole, allow any margin for an increase in the cost of workmen's compensation insurance. Attention may be drawn to the fact that several tariff offices have an indicated loss ratio for the year 1913 considerably less than fifty per cent, but this favorable feature is readily capable of explanation when it is borne in mind that the offices in question have—through their long-established connections—been able to secure a substantial premium income, the greater percentage of which will be confined to the more non-hazardous risks. The fact that several non-tariff offices have—as a reference to the table will show—been able to discriminate in their acceptances so as not only to enable them to presumably allow their policyholders a reduction off the rates charged by the tariff offices, but also to secure a probable loss ratio in the year 1913 well under that of not a few of the tariff offices, indicates that the said offices are fully cognizant of the particular classes of trade which are meantime adequately rated by the tariff offices. It is, however, clear that, having regard to the indicated loss ratio of the tariff offices upon the whole business, certain classes of trade are even at the present time inadequately rated."

EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY AND WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION POLICY.

"Standard Form Employer's Liability and Workmen's Compensation Policy Approved by the Insurance Department of the State of New York and Acceptable as Evidence of Insurance by the State Workmens Compensation Commission."

Name of Company (hereinafter called the Company), does hereby agree with the employer (hereinafter called the Employer) named and described as such in the declarations hereinafter set forth, and hereby made a part hereof, as respects personal injuries sustained by employees, including death, at any time resulting therefrom, as follows:

Compensation.—I. To pay in the manner provided by the New York Workmens Compensation Law and all amendments thereto, any sum due or to become due from the Employer because of any such injury, and the obligation for compensation therefor imposed upon the Employer by such law. It is agreed that all of the provisions of such law covered hereby shall be a part of this contract as fully and completely as though written herein, so far as they apply to compensation for any personal injury or death covered by this policy while it shall remain in force. This obligation for compensation shall include all provisions of such law respecting funeral expenses, medical, surgical and other attendance and treatment, nurse and hospital service, medicines, crutches and apparatus.

Liability.—II. To indemnify the Employer against loss by reason of the liability imposed upon the Employer by law for damages on account of such injuries.

Service.—III. To serve the Employer (1) by the inspection of work places set forth in said declarations, and thereupon to suggest to the Employer such changes and improvements as may operate to reduce the number and severity of personal injuries during work; and (2) upon notice of such injuries so sustained, by investigation thereof and by settlement of any resulting claims in accordance with the law.

Defense.—IV. To defend in the name and on behalf of the Employer, any suits or other proceedings which may at any time be instituted against him on account of such injuries, including suits or other proceedings alleging such injuries and demanding damages or compensation therefor, although such suits, proceedings, allegations and demands are wholly groundless, false or fraudulent.

Costs and Expenses.—V. To pay all costs taxed against the Employer in any legal proceeding defended by the Company, all interest accruing after entry of judgment, and all expenses incurred by the Company for investigation, negotiation and defense.

Employees Covered.—VI. This policy shall cover only employees of the Employer, legally employed, whose remuneration is included in said declarations, but nothing in this policy shall be construed as excluding any employee who may become entitled to compensation under the provisions of the New York Workmen's Compensation Law and all amendments thereto, all of whom shall be expressly included.

Policy Term.—VII. This policy shall apply only to such injuries so sustained by reason of accidents occurring within the policy term as limited and defined in Item 2 of said declarations.

THIS POLICY IS SUBJECT TO THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS:

Basis of Premium.—A. The premium rates in said declarations are subject to such change as shall be justified by the last schedule rating inspection report, which shall be made within six months after this policy takes effect. Any such change of such rates shall take effect as of the date this policy takes effect, but in no event shall more than one change in such rates be made during the term of this policy. The premium is based upon the entire remuneration earned during the term of the policy by all employees of the Employer, except that no premium charge shall be made upon any portion of the remuneration of any officer of a corporation in excess of $1,500 per annum. If the earned premium thus computed is greater than the advance estimated premium paid, the Employer shall immediately pay the additional amount to the Company; if less, the Company shall immediately return the unearned premium to the Employer.

Employee's Recourse to Company.—B. The Workmens Compensation Commission of the State of New York shall have the right to enforce, in the name of the people of the State, for the benefit of the persons entitled to the compensation herein insured, either by filing a separate application or by making the Company a party to the original application, the liability of the Company in whole or in part for the payment of compensation; provided, however, that payment in whole or in part of such compensation either by the Employer or the Company shall, to the extent thereof, be a bar to the recovery against the other of the amount so paid.

Knowledge and Jurisdiction of Employer Deemed Knowledge and Jurisdiction of Company.—C. As between the employee or his dependents and the Company, the notice to or knowledge of the occurrence of an injury on the part of the Employer shall be deemed notice or knowledge, as the case may be, on the part of the Company. The jurisdiction of the Employer shall be the jurisdiction of the Company and the Company shall in all things be bound by and subject to the orders, findings, decisions or awards rendered against the Employer for the payment of compensation under the provisions of the New York Workmens Compensation Law.

Insolvency of Employer Does Not Relieve Company.—D. The insolvency or bankruptcy of the Employer shall not relieve the Company from the payment of compensation for such injuries sustained by an employee during the life of this policy.

Cancellation.—E. This policy may be canceled by either party upon ten days' notice to the other party stating when thereafter cancellation shall be effective, and the date of cancellation shall then be the end of the policy term. Such notice of cancellation shall be served on the Employer by delivering it to him, or by sending it by mail by registered letter addressed to the Employer at his last known place of residence; provided that if the employer be a partnership, then such notice may be so given to any one of the partners, and if the employer be a corporation, then such notice may be given to any agent or officer of the corporation upon whom legal process may be served. Notice of intention to cancel shall be filed in the office of the Workmens Compensation Commission at least ten days prior to its effective date. The earned premiums shall be computed upon the basis of the remuneration to date of cancellation. If such cancellation is at the Company's request, or at the Employer's request when actually retiring from the business herein described, the earned premium shall be computed as provided in Condition A, and adjusted pro rata. If such cancellation is at the Employer's request and he is not retiring from the business herein described, the earned premium shall be computed and adjusted at short rates in accordance with the table printed hereon, but such short rate premium shall not be less than the minimum premium stated in said declarations.

Unconstitutionality or Invalidity of Law Requires Readjustment of Premium Rates.—F. If the New York Workmens Compensation Law shall be declared invalid or unconstitutional, in whole or in part, by the judgment of the court of last resort, the premium rates provided by this policy or any endorsement hereon, shall apply until the date of such judgment, and the Company shall immediately readjust the premium rates provided by this policy subject to the approval of the Superintendent of Insurance so as to equitably reflect the changed conditions.

Inspection of Plant and Examination of Books.—G. The Company shall be permitted, at all reasonable times, to inspect the plants, works, machinery and appliances of the Employer; and to examine the Employer's books and records at any reasonable time during the policy term or any extension thereof or within one year after its final expiration, for the purpose of determining the actual premium earned while the policy was in force.

Notice.—H. Upon the occurrence of an accident the Employer shall give immediate written notice thereof to the company or its duly authorized agent. He shall give like notice with full particulars of any claim made on account of such accident. If any suit or other proceeding is instituted against the Employer, he shall immediately forward to the Company every notice, summons or other process served upon him.

Assignment.—J. No assignment or change of interest under this Policy shall bind the Company unless its consent shall be endorsed hereon or attached hereto, signed by a duly authorized officer of the company.

Subrogation.—K. In case of the payment of loss or expense under this policy, the Company shall be subrogated to all the rights of the Employer or any employee or dependent covered hereby, to the extent of such payment, and the Employer shall execute all papers required and shall co-operate with the Company to secure its rights.

Changes in Policy.—L. No condition or provision in this Policy shall be waived or altered except by endorsement hereon or attached hereto signed by a duly authorized officer of the Company.

Acceptance.—M. The Employer, by the acceptance of this policy, declares the statements in items numbered 1 to 11, inclusive, in said declarations to be true, except such as are declared to be matters of estimate only; and this policy is issued in consideration thereof, and the provisions of the policy as respects its premium, and the payment of such premium.

MANUFACTURERS' EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures manufacturers against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured while within the factory, shop or yards, or ways immediately adjacent thereto, and resulting from the business operations of the assured. The premium is based on the total estimated annual compensation of all employees, but it is permissible to exclude the salaries of executive officers not actually directing or superintending; the salaries of office and clerical force, if these employees are not to be covered by the policy; the wages of pieceworkers employed away from the premises, and the wages of drivers and drivers' helpers, if a concurrent teams' policy is carried. At the expiration of policy a statement must be rendered to the company by the assured, of the actual compensation earned by all employees covered by the policy, and if this amount exceeds the estimate upon which the policy was issued, the excess premium calculated at the rate named in the policy must be paid to the company. On the other hand, if this amount is less than the estimate, the company will refund to the assured the amount of such difference calculated in the same way, subject, however, to a minimum premium of $25.00 for every policy.

MANUFACTURERS' PUBLIC LIABILITY.

This form of policy applies to persons other than the employees of the assured, but in all other respects is identical with the Manufacturers' Employers' Liability contract.

CONTRACTORS' EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures contractors, builders, electric light and power companies, telegraph and telephone and mining companies against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured at the location where work is being done or business operations carried on, and resulting from said work or business operations of the assured. The premium is calculated and adjusted substantially in the same way as for Manufacturers' Employers' Liability, subject to a minimum premium of $50.00 for each policy.

CONTRACTORS' PUBLIC LIABILITY.

This form of policy applies to persons other than the employees of the assured, but in every other respect is identical with the provisions of the Contractors' Employers' Liability contract.

GENERAL OR LANDLORDS' LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures owners, lessees or tenants of premises (not manufacturers) against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured, or by any other person or persons while within the premises, or upon the sidewalks or approaches immediately adjacent thereto, and resulting from the business operations of the assured. The premium for the liability to employees is calculated and adjusted in practically the same manner as for Manufacturers' Employers' Liability. The premium for the liability to persons other than employees is based upon the total area and frontage of the premises, and upon the number and kind of elevators to be insured. This form of policy is adapted to the use of apartment houses, cemeteries, churches, clubs, hotels, office buildings, private dwellings, public libraries, public museums and picture galleries, restaurants, retail stores, sidewalks used by hucksters, tenements, vacant land, wharf and water-front property, wholesale stores and wholesale and retail stores.

TEAMS' LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures the owners or users of horses and vehicles against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured, or by any other person or persons by means of the use of such horses or vehicles in the business operations of the assured. The premium is based upon the number of vehicles in use, which is determined by the number of drivers employed, by calculating from the total pay roll of drivers the average wages per driver. The adjustment of premium at expiration is made in the same manner as for Manufacturers' Employers' Liability.

The premium for vehicles adapted for private use only is based upon the number of such vehicles driven by the assured or any employee. If the policy is to be extended to cover vehicles while in charge of members of the assured's family the premium is based upon the number of horses owned, in place of upon the number of vehicles.

AUTOMOBILE LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures the owners or users of automobiles against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured, or by any other person or persons by reason of the ownership, maintenance or use of such automobiles. The premium for business vehicles is based upon the number of drivers employed, and is calculated and adjusted in the same manner as for teams' insurance. The premium for private vehicles is calculated upon the number of cars owned and the horsepower of each car, subject, however, to a minimum premium per car regardless of horsepower. A different charge is made for the kind of motive power used as between gasoline or electric, and as between locations where the assured resides, these locations being generally divided into three schedules, covering under schedule 1 cities of New York, including the five counties of Greater New York, Nassau county, Long Island and part of Westchester county; the city of Chicago and counties of Cook, Lake and Du Paige, also Hammond, Ind., and all territory between it and Illinois State line. Under schedule 2 the cities of Boston and nineteen cities and towns immediately adjacent; Providence and counties of Providence, Kent and Bristol; under schedule 3 all locations not included in previous schedules.

An additional charge is made for all types of automobiles to provide "combination coverage" (employers' liability and workman's compensation), in those States where compensation laws are in force.

This form of policy may also be extended to cover what is known as property damage insurance, protecting the assured against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law upon the assured for damages on account of damage to or destruction of property of any description, except property of the assured or property of others while in charge of the assured, or any of the assured's employees, or while carried in or upon any of the automobiles insured, resulting from the ownership, maintenance or use of any such automobiles, excluding, however, damage or destruction by fire from any cause.

The policy may also be extended to cover what is known as collision insurance, protecting the assured against loss or expense by reason of damage to or destruction of any of the automobiles insured, including the operating equipment of the same while attached thereto caused solely by collision with another object, either moving or stationary, excluding damage or destruction by fire from any cause, and damage or destruction caused by striking any portion of the roadbed, or by striking street or steam railroad rails or ties; excluding also damage to or destruction of tires, unless the entire loss, including such tires resulting from one collision, shall exceed the sum of $200, in which case damage to or destruction of tires shall be paid for.

The premium for the first $1000 of property damage insurance for private cars is usually figured at twenty-five per cent of the premium charged for automobile liability insurance, and four per cent of such property damage premium is charged for each additional $100 of property damage insurance.

The premium for the first $1000 property damage insurance for commercial and demonstrating cars is usually figured at forty per cent of the premium charged for liability policy, and two and one-half per cent of such property damage premium is charged for each additional $100 of property damage insurance.

The premium for the first $1000 property damage on public vehicles is usually figured at thirty per cent of the premium charged for liability policy, and for each additional $100 of property damage the percentage of charge is the same as that charged for commercial and demonstrating cars.

The premium charged for collision insurance is specifically determined for each car in the case of private cars, and for public vehicles, livery vehicles and cars used for commercial and demonstrating purposes the premium is figured at a percentage of the manufacturer's catalogue list price, plus full cost of equipment.

Under the heading of automobile insurance, as developed in recent years, the following general classifications are included:

1. Motorcycles, designed to carry but one person; premium based upon number of machines to be covered.
2. Pleasure vehicles, vehicles of the private type, including motor bicycles or tri-cycles, designed to carry more than one person; premium based upon the number and horsepower of vehicles insured.
3. Public vehicles, taxicabs, omnibuses and livery vehicles in general; premium based upon the number and carrying capacity of vehicles insured, regardless of horsepower, except that for livery vehicles of the private-car type the premium is based upon horsepower.
4. Commercial vehicles for the transportation or delivery of goods, merchandise or for other business use; premium based upon number of cars insured regardless of horsepower.
5. Demonstrating and testing, including cars of all types while being tested or demonstrated; premium based upon the number of chauffeurs employed, each chauffeur to be named, or upon cars specifically insured by manufacturer's number.
6. Garage, sales agency and station risks; premium based upon total pay roll of employees, including executive officers of a corporation or members of a firm or partnership whose salary or compensation is specifically fixed and is not subject to adjustment.

ELEVATOR LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures owners or users of elevators against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured, or by any other person or persons while in the elevator car, or while entering upon or alighting therefrom, or caused by the machinery or appliances connected with the elevator. The premium is based on the number and type of elevators to be insured, whether passenger or freight, sidewalk, one-story, factory, hand hoist, private house, escalator or sidewalk chute.

VESSEL EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures vessel and shipowners against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by an employee or employees of the assured while on or about the vessels or on the ways immediately thereto, and resulting from the business operations of the assured. The premium is based on the total compensation earned by the crew, and is calculated and adjusted in the same manner as for Manufacturers' Employers' Liability. If the hazard of collision is to be included under the policy, an endorsement covering this feature must be attached, for which an additional charge is made. Vessel liability policies are adapted for use of ferry companies, fishing vessels, great lakes, ocean and coastwise steamers, river and sound steamers, sailing vessels and tugboats—towing, and water boats, supplying water for shipping.

VESSEL EMPLOYERS' AND PUBLIC LIABILITY.

This form of policy applies to employees as well as to persons other than employees, excluding passengers, but in every other respect is identical with the Vessel Employers' Liability contract. An additional charge is made on this policy also, for protection against the hazard of collision.

THEATER LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures owners, lessees or tenants of theaters, music halls and other places of amusement or entertainment against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by any person or persons while within the premises or upon the sidewalks or other ways immediately adjacent thereto. The premium is based upon the total seating capacity in the case of theaters, opera houses and music halls, and upon the total gate receipts in the case of horse shows, dog shows, bicycle shows, automobile shows, agriculture or horticultural shows and baseball grounds.

OWNERS' PROTECTIVE OR CONTINGENT LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures owners of buildings in course of construction against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by any person or persons during the continuance of the work, and resulting from the negligence of any contractor or sub-contractor engaged in the work. The premium is based on the estimated total cost of the work, and is adjusted at expiration of policy according as such actual cost is greater or less than the estimated cost.

CONTRACTORS' PROTECTIVE OR CONTINGENT LIABILITY.

This form of policy insures contractors for buildings in course of construction against loss or expense by reason of the liability imposed by law for damages on account of bodily injuries, including death, accidentally suffered by any person or persons during the continuance of the work, and resulting from the negligence of any sub-contractor engaged in doing a part of the work. The premium is based upon a percentage of the estimated cost of the work, less the compensation earned by the employees of the assured. If the assured does no part of the work, the premium is estimated upon the total cost of the work. In either case the adjustment of premium is made as under Owners' Protective or Contingent Liability.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

This form of policy insures the liability and agrees to pay the compensation and the medical, surgical and hospital expenses and medicines provided for by the Workmen's Compensation Act of the State where the business operations of the assured are carried on. The insurance granted under the policy is unlimited in amount as now required by the compensation law in practically every State. The premium is based upon the total estimated remuneration paid to all employees of the assured, and is adjusted at expiration according to whether said estimate is greater or less than the actual remuneration paid. The compensation law of most States requires the insurance company to assume the cost of medical, surgical and hospital expenses payable to injured employees under the act, but in a few States, notably in New York, the employer is permitted to provide this service independently of the insurance company, and in such cases a discount, ranging from 10 per cent to 20 per cent of the premium, is allowed to the assured, and the policy is endorsed to exclude the payment of all such expenses.

PERSONAL ACCIDENT.

This form of policy insures against loss of life, limb, sight and time, and covers bodily injuries suffered by the assured through external, violent and accidental means, and provides for the payment of the principal sum in case of death, loss of both hands or both feet, or one hand and one foot, or the sight of both eyes, and proportionate parts of the principal sum for the loss of one hand or of one foot, or the sight of one eye; also for the payment of double principal sum if such injuries are sustained while riding as a passenger in or on a public conveyance provided by a common carrier, or while in a passenger elevator, or in consequence of the burning of a building while the assured is therein, or in consequence of the collapse of the outer walls of a building while the assured is therein. For temporary disability the full weekly indemnity is paid during the period of total disability, and a proportion of weekly indemnity is paid during the period of partial disability, depending upon the extent of the disability. The policy also provides for payment in case of sunstroke, freezing, hydrophobia, asphyxiation or blood poison; for hospital expenses for a limited period; for surgeon's fees in case of specified operations; for optional fixed indemnity payable in lieu of weekly indemnity for specified injuries; for payment of medical or surgical expenses for a limited period in cases where no disability results from the accident, and for the accumulation of the principal sum insured until same amounts to fifty per cent thereof.

DISABILITY.

This form of policy provides the same benefits as the accident policy above referred to, and in addition pays one-half of the principal sum for blindness or paralysis resulting from sickness. The policy also pays full weekly indemnity for the period of total disability resulting from disease or sickness during the period that the assured was confined to the house, and following this period one-half of the weekly indemnity is paid during the period of total disability and non-confinement to the house. Payment is also made for surgeon's fees for operations on account of specified diseases in addition to specified injuries.

STEAM BOILER.

This form of policy covers all direct loss or damage to the property of the assured or to the property of others; also loss of life or personal injuries to any person caused by the explosion, collapse or rupture of a boiler due to steam pressure. The policy may also be extended to cover loss of total profits or income, due to the total or partial destruction of the premises or plant as the result of the explosion, collapse or rupture of any boiler whereby the business of the assured is entirely suspended or materially affected. The premium is based upon the number of boilers insured and the amount of insurance per boiler for any one loss, as well as for total insurance under the policy.

FLY-WHEEL.

This form of policy covers all direct loss or damage to the property of the assured and to the property of others, as well as loss of life or bodily injuries to any person caused by the explosion, bursting or breaking of a fly-wheel or other wheel injured. The policy may also be extended to cover loss of total profits or income due to total or partial destruction of the premises or plant as result of the explosion, bursting or breaking of any fly-wheel, or other wheel, whereby the business of the assured is entirely suspended or materially affected.

PLATE GLASS.

This form of policy insures against loss or damage by breakage of glass as the result of accident and due to causes beyond the control of the assured. The loss is estimated according to the value of the glass at the time of breakage, and the company may pay the actual value of the glass broken or replace the glass as it may elect. The policy does not cover loss or damage resulting from fire, earthquake, inundation, insurrection, riot nor any military or usurped power; nor from the legal blowing up of buildings, nor from work of construction, alterations or repairs to buildings. The premium is based upon the number of plates and location and description of glass, and an additional premium is charged for all clamped or glued, bent, art or ornamental glass.

BURGLARY, THEFT AND LARCENY.

Residence burglary and theft policy covers direct loss by burglary, theft or larceny of any of the property of the assured occasioned by its felonious abstraction from the interior of the house, building or apartment occupied by the assured; by any domestic servant or other employee of the assured, or by any other person or persons excepting any person whose property is insured; also against direct loss by damage to such property and to said premises caused by burglars or thieves. The policy covers property belonging to any permanent member of the household who does not pay board or rent, except domestic servants or other employees. The policy does not cover property of servants or employees or during any period of non-occupancy after a total of four months in any one year, unless permitted by endorsement; but in no such event is any loss covered in excess of $100 for jewelry, precious stones or watches occurring during any period of unoccupancy exceeding eighty-four consecutive hours. The policy does not cover loss of money or any plan, pattern, model, document or any one book or manuscript in excess of $50, unless specifically insured; nor loss due to explosives, fire or water, invasion, riot or war, the action of the elements, nor loss in excess of the actual cash value of the property taken or damaged.

Mercantile burglary policy insures against direct loss by burglary of merchandise occasioned from its felonious abstraction from the premises occupied by the assured by any person or persons who shall have made entry into the premises during the day or night by the use of actual force and violence, of which there are visible marks upon the premises; also for direct loss by damage to the merchandise, furniture, fixtures or premises caused by such entry or exit.

Mercantile safe policy covers direct loss by burglary of money, postoffice and revenue stamps, bullion, negotiable securities, drafts and promissory notes and merchandise, in consequence of the felonious abstraction of the same by burglars from the safe or safes after entry into the same by the use of tools or explosives; also for direct loss by damage to said merchandise, or to said safe or safes, or to the furniture, fixtures or premises caused by such entry.

Combination messenger, paymaster and interior hold-up and safe burglary policy covers direct loss by robbery of money, bullion, postoffice and revenue stamps, checks, negotiable securities, coupons, bills of exchange, drafts and notes, express, bank and postoffice money orders, watches, jewelry and other merchandise from the care or custody of any employee of the assured while acting as messenger or paymaster, and while conveying the same to or from the place or places directed by the assured; also for direct loss by robbery of any of the property above described, feloniously, violently and forcibly abstracted from within the premises of the assured; for direct loss by robbery, by force or by violence, of money intended for payrolls only from the person, care or custody of any employee of the assured while acting as messenger or paymaster, or while conveying the same to and from such places as directed by the assured; also for direct loss by robbery of any of the property above described from the safe or safes located on the premises of the assured by any person or persons who shall have made entry into such safe or safes by the use of tools or explosives; also for direct loss or damage to said property or said safe or safes or to the furniture, fixtures or premises caused by such entry.

SPRINKLER LEAKAGE.

This form of policy covers loss or damage to the property of the assured or to the property of others, held in trust or on commission, or sold but not delivered, due to the accidental discharge or leakage of water from the sprinkler system from any cause, except fire, war or riot, earthquake, storms or cyclones, explosions or blasting, or collapse of the building. The premium is computed upon the amount of insurance, and the rate varies with the class of merchandise insured as well as with the physical hazard of the risk.

CREDIT.

This form of policy covers loss from uncollected accounts, and is a special contract made up to meet the requirements of each individual case. Every policy provides for a minimum amount to be assumed by the assured known as "own loss," or some other similar term, whereby such amount is deducted from every loss sustained before the company is liable under the policy. The rate of premium varies with the class of business, the financial standing and business reputation of the assured, and the amount of indemnity provided by the policy.

USE AND OCCUPANCY.

This form of insurance is generally written under three headings, namely, manufacturers, mercantile and rental. The first covers factories; the second, wholesale and retail stores, and the third, buildings owned by the assured but rented to others. The contracts provide that if the buildings, plant or machinery are so damaged by accident as to entirely or partially destroy the premises or machinery, or prevent the continuance of business, the company will pay for the actual loss sustained not exceeding a stipulated sum per day for each working day of such prevention. Loss is computed from the date of occurrence of the accident to the time when the normal resumption of business operations can take place.

We have exclusive contracts with many guaranteed members of this the greatest underwriting association in the world, by which we are able to immediately cover large amounts on desirable risks irrespective of other amounts on the same properties obtained through other channels.

For more than thirty years we have conducted this department of business with European and American companies and our facilities are unequalled.

There never is trouble, vexation, or delay in the adjustment of losses when forms have been drawn and risks have been placed through our office.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS

SPECIALLY QUALIFIED TO HANDLE INSURANCE CASES.

We take pleasure in presenting the following List of Physicians, each of whom can be recommended as being a competent examiner for insurance companies. Companies not having their own examiner in any of the localities mentioned will find it worth while to communicate with any name mentioned in the following list, according to the locality which it may be desired to cover:

The publishers desire to give credit to The Industrial Review of Chicago, and also to the American Association of Medical Examiners for names produced in the following pages:

ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELORS

SPECIALLY QUALIFIED TO HANDLE INSURANCE CASES.

It is a well-known fact that few lawyers are competent to properly handle an insurance case without a special knowledge of the business, however skillful they may be as general practitioners. We have requested from a large number of well-known underwriters the names of attorneys whom they have found to be competent and satisfactory in the conduct of cases placed in their charge. The following list is made up of the names thus voluntarily given, together with a few others who have given special attention to insurance law.

ESTABLISHED 1868

The Spectator:

AN AMERICAN REVIEW OF INSURANCE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

Subscription Price, $4.00 per Annum.

THE SPECTATOR is a live and progressive insurance journal, noted for its pungent and fearless discussion of all matters pertaining to the vast subject of insurance in every branch. In the many years of its existence it has built up a reputation for fair and honest treatment of insurance matters that has made it invaluable to insurance men of every class, whether they be

MANAGERS OF COMPANIES OR AGENTS IN THE FIELD.

It contains the latest and freshest insurance news from every quarter, bright and sparkling correspondence from the principal insurance centers of the country, comments on current insurance events of the day, and able discussions on the principles of Life, Fire, Accident and Miscellaneous Insurance.

A most valuable feature of THE SPECTATOR is the presentation from time to time of carefully prepared and voluminous of the business of Life, Fire and Miscellaneous Insurance, usually in a comparative form, showing the business transactions and detailed experience of all companies for a series of years. These statistics are compiled by experts having no personal interest to serve, but are prepared solely for the purpose of analyzing the subject.

THE MOST EMINENT WRITERS

on Insurance in its various forms are contributors to its columns, and the aim of its proprietors is to present the science of the insurance systems in vogue without prejudice to any and in fairness to all. It is in this spirit that Fire, Life, Industrial, Accident and Employers' Liability, Natural Premium Life and Miscellaneous Insurance Companies, Associations and Societies are treated without fear or favor. It also gives the current news from different insurance centers each week, and each number is that are of interest to the profession at large. In short, it is the ambition of its proprietors to make THE SPECTATOR an invaluable journal to every person identified with the insurance interest in any capacity, and its unprecedented success is evidence that their efforts are appreciated.

Reasons why it should be Preferred by those Desiring Insurance

It has the benefit of sixty-four years' successful experience.

Its business is conducted on the mutual plan, thus enabling members to get their insurance at cost.

It has always paid large dividends, thereby making the cost of insurance low.

It maintains a reserve for the protection of policyholders, on the Massachusetts Standard, the highest basis required by the laws of any State.

It has a large surplus over the legal reserve and all other liabilities.

Its conditions as to travel and residence are very liberal.

Its policies are protected by the non-forfeiture laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which secure greater benefits to members than those of any other State.

It has always maintained a high reputation for just and liberal treatment of its members by promptly adjusting and settling all policy claims, a proof of which is the fact that no judgment has ever been rendered against it.
